DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to amended claim 1 have been considered and are persuasive but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. PGPub 2005/0007346 to Ma et al. Ma teaches an optical device used in an optical mouse comprising an LED 209 that emits light in an optical conduit 301, from an input end 305 to an output end 307 via an optical path (as represent by reference numeral 311). The optical conduit 301 is a reflective paraboloid surface. (See at least Fig. 3 and description)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ma in view of 2005/0127543 to Rickering et al. Ma teaches the optical device with the LED and the parabolic optical conduit except for the LED being located at a focus of the paraboloid and the reflective film being opaque. Rickering teaches an optical device comprising: a light-guiding body 21 having a light input surface (where an LED 41 with a light emitting chip 6 is located), a light emergent/output surface 22, and a light path inherently therebetween since the optical device is made to output light generated from the LED; a paraboloidal-curved reflector surface 25 for the LED, at the focus of which is located the LED chip; the paraboloidal-curved surface 25 can be provided with a opaque coating. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to place the LED at the focus of the parabolic optical conduit of Ma's invention. The motivation would be that a light source at the focal point produces a parallel light beam down the light conduit.
